Rachelle Bond, left, and Michael McCarthy are arraigned in the death of Bella Neveah Amoroso Bond. / PAT GREENHOUSE / GLOBE STAFF

Baby Doe stuffed in fridge as mom shot up

Bella. No bail for the man charged with killing Baby Doe, while her mother was held on $1 million.

Rachelle Bond shot up heroin with her boyfriend Michael McCarthy after he beat her 2-year-old daughter Bella Bond to death in her toddler bed, prosecutors said Monday.

Bond, the mother of the child known until recently as Baby Doe, was arraigned in court Monday along with her boyfriend — the child's accused killer. McCarthy is charged with murder; Bond is charged with accessory after the fact.

Prosecutors said McCarthy was certain that the child was possessed by some kind of demons and would regularly lock the child in a closet when she would get upset. The night Bella was killed, McCarthy went into her bedroom and beat her because she was crying, prosecutors said. Rachelle Bond came in to find her daughter dead, prosecutors said.

Bond said that she witnessed McCarthy punch Bella in the stomach until she stopped breathing.

McCarthy allegedly said "it was time for her to die" because she was possessed. Bond told investigators that he then grabbed her by the throat and told her that he'd kill her if she reported the killing. She said he put Bella's body and her blanket into a trash bag and put it in the kitchen refrigerator.

Afterward, Bond said McCarthy would regularly inject her with heroin to keep her sedated.

McCarthy then took Bella's body and tossed it into the ocean near the South Boston waterfront. Her remains were discovered wrapped in a garbage bag on the shore of Deer Island on June 25.

McCarthy went into the hospital on Sept. 17, at which point Bond was able to run away and contact authorities.

Bond and McCarthy were arrested Friday, putting an end to an 83-day-long search for any information regarding the identity of a computer-generated image of a brown-eyed little girl.

According to court documents, a friend of Bond's asked her about Bella on Sept. 16. The friend said Bond told her that she would never be able to see her daughter again and that she was afraid of being an accomplice to a murder.

The friend told investigators that they had witnessed McCarthy and Bond scream at the child, call her a "demon" and lock her in a closet. As images of Baby Doe circulated the television and social media sphere, the witness contacted McCarthy and Bond, accusing them of killing the little girl.

According to prosecutors, McCarthy responded by calling Bond a "cracked-out hooker," and saying that Bella was in DCF custody. After seeing the sketch, the witness and a family member called the police.

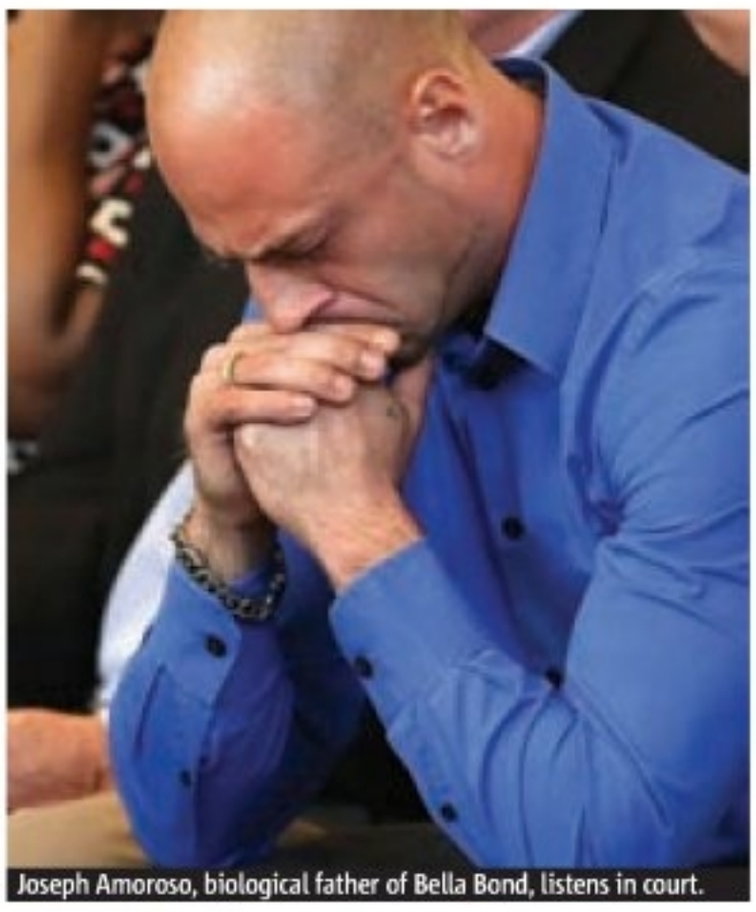
Bella Bond's biological father, Joseph Amoroso, appeared at today's proceedings, as did Rachelle Bond's former friend Megan Fewtrell, 36. Fewtrell clutched a stuffed yellow duck she said Bella cherished. At one point, Fewtrell said she hoped Bond would "rot in hell."

Amoroso said outside the courtroom that he had never met Bella, and that he forgives Rachelle for the child's murder.

"If you look at Rachelle's neck, you'll see a track mark," Amoroso said. "McCarthy was dosing her with a gram to three grams of heroin to control her."

Bond is facing accessory to murder and improper disposal of a human body charges. McCarthy is facing first-degree murder and improper disposal of a body charges.

As McCarthy and Bond were led out of the court, Amoroso shouted, "Michael McCarthy, you're done. You won't last a day."



Joseph Amoroso, biological father of Bella Bond, listens in court.

Suspect in Fenway rape may have tried to abduct a child

Winchester. Police say the man attacked a 10-year-old in the Boston suburb.

The man arrested in connection with a violent sexual assault in the Fenway this week will also face charges for allegedly trying to abduct a child in Winchester.

Police believe 36-year-old Michael Purpura of Westwood attacked a 10-year-old girl in a tunnel by Skillings Field on Saturday, one day before he was taken into custody for allegedly raping a woman in her Boston apartment.

Winchester police responded to the field around 4:20 p.m. on Saturday for reports of an assault on a child near a walk-through tunnel by the field, according to a report.

The girl told officers a white man with a scruffy beard asked her what time it was, then walked away and reappeared as the girl was walking through the tunnel, placed his hand over her mouth and picked her up off the ground, according to a report. The girl kicked the man and was able to get away, running onto the field and contacting a group of adults, who called police, the report said.

Officers identified the suspect, who they believe to be Purpura, in surveillance footage near the alleged attack, police said.

"This is a very disturbing case in which a man allegedly attacked a young girl," Winchester Police Chief Kenneth Albertelli said in a statement. "Our detectives worked aggressively and diligently to put together a case, and I am grateful that this appears to be an isolated incident."

Purpura was scheduled to face aggravated rape charges in court Monday stemming from an incident in the early hours of Tuesday, Sept. 15, in Boston's Fenway neighborhood, according to police.

On Tuesday at about 12:30 a.m., police responded to reports of an assault near Queensbury Street in the Fenway, where the alleged victim told officers a man had forced her into her apartment and sexual assaulted her, police said.

Doctor's Memory Breakthrough

New Discovery for People with Failing Memory

World's Leading Brain Expert and Winner of the Prestigious Kennedy Award, Unveils Exciting News For the Scattered, Unfocused and Forgetful

Dr. Meir Shinitzky, Ph.D. a former visiting professor at Duke University and a recipient of the prestigious J.F. Kennedy Prize

By Steven Wuzubia
Health Correspondent;

Clearwater, Florida: Dr. Meir Shinitzky, Ph.D., is a former visiting professor at Duke University, recipient of the prestigious J.F. Kennedy Prize and author of more than 200 international scientific papers on human body cells. But now he's come up with what the medical world considers his greatest accomplishment — A vital compound. so powerful, it's reported to repair… even regrow damaged brain cells. In layman's terms — Bring back your memory power. And leave you feeling more focused and clear-headed than you have in years!

Dr. Shinitsky explains this phenomenon in simple terms; "Science has shown when your brain nutrient levels drop, you can start to experience memory problems and overall mental fatigue. Your ability to concentrate and stay focused becomes compromised. And gradually, a "mental fog" sets in. It can damage every aspect of your life". Not only do brain cells die but they become dysfunctional as if they begin to fade away as we age. This affects our ability to have mental clarity and focus and impacts our ability to remember things that were easy for us to do in our 20's and 30's.

Scientists think the biggest cause of brain deterioration in older people is the decreased functioning of membranes and molecules that surround the brain cells. These really are the transmitters that connect the tissues or the brain cells to one another that help us with our sharp memory, clear thinking and mental focus, even our powers to reason well. "When we are in our 20's" according to Dr. Shinitzky "our body produces key substances like phosphatidylserine and phosphatidic acid"…unfortunately they are believed to be critical essential nutrients that just fade away with age, much like our memories often do leading to further mental deterioration.

As we get older it becomes more frustrating as there is little comfort when you forget names… misplace your keys…or just feel "a little confused". And even though your foggy memory gets laughed off as just another "senior moment," it's not very funny when it keeps happening to you.

The Missing Link is Found and Tested

It's hard to pronounce that's for sure, but it certainly appears from the astounding clinical research that this one vital nutrient phosphatidylserine (PS) can really make a huge difference in our mental wellness. 17 different double blind studies with placebo controlled groups have been involved in the clinical research of PS with patients between the ages of 55-80 years of age. Periodically the researchers gave these patients memory and cognitive tests and the results were simply amazing:

1) PS patients outperformed placebo patients in All 5 Tests - 100% Success Rate
2) After only 45 days there was a measurable improvement in mental function
3) After 90 days, there was an impressive and amazing improvement in mental function

The group taking phosphatidylserine, not only enjoyed sharper memory, but listen to this… they were also more upbeat and remarkably more happy. In contrast, the moods of the individuals who took the placebo (starch pill), remained unaffected….no mental or mood improvement at all.

My Memory Started to Scare Me.

I would forget all kinds of things and something that I just said earlier in the day would have completely slipped my mind. I almost forgot my granddaughter's birthday and that would have been horrible. I had forgotten lots of other little things along the way. I was worried about it.

Over the last several months I've noticed my memory seemed to be getting pretty unreliable and so I thought I'd better do something about it now. So when I read about this amazing PS nutrient and how much it would help me with my memory I wanted to try it.

It's great! I have actual recall now, which is super. After about 6 weeks of taking it on a daily basis is when I began to notice that I wasn't forgetting things anymore.

Thanks to PS for giving me my memory back. It's given me a lot more self-confidence and self-esteem. I would not trust my memory without it.

Vital Nutrient Reverses "Scatter Brain"

This incredible PS nutrient feeds your brain the vital nutrient it needs to stay healthy... PS now has the attention of some of the world's most prominent brain experts. It has been written up and published in leading science and medical journals and its findings have electrified the International scientific community.

Earth-Shaking Science

Published, clinical reports show replenishing your body's natural supply of Phosphatidylserine, not only helps sharpen your memory and concentration — but also helps "perk you up" and put you in a better mood. PS as it turns out also helps to reduce everyday stress and elevate your mood by lowering your body's production of the hormone cortisol. When cortisol levels are too high for too long you experience fatigue, bad moods and weakness. This drug-free brain-boosting formula enters your bloodstream fast (in as little as thirty minutes).

1 Macy's to hire 85,000 workers for holiday shopping season

Department store chain Macy's Inc. plans to hire 85,000 temporary workers in the United States for the holiday shopping season, down from 86,000 last year.

Macy's said that about 12,000 positions would be based in direct-to-consumer fulfillment facilities in areas such as Arizona, Oklahoma and Connecticut.

Macy's customer service centers will get 1,600 workers.

More than 1,000 will be hired as support staff across the country for other events such as the Thanksgiving Day Parade, the operator of Macy's and Bloomingdale's stores said.

Retailers get nearly a third of their annual sales and almost 40 percent of their profits in the shopping season that starts a day after Thanksgiving and goes on until early January.

Rival Kohl's Corp. said this month that it would hire 69,000 workers for the season. REUTERS

3 White House concerned by Volkswagen

The White House said it was "quite concerned" about reports it was seeing concerning Volkswagen's conduct in complying with U.S. Clean Air Act requirements.

"It's fair to say that we're quite concerned by some of the reports that we've seen about the conduct of this particular company, but ultimately this is the responsibility of the Environmental Protection Agency to take a look at it and that's exactly what they're doing," said White House spokesman Josh Earnest.

Dallas police fatally shot a man armed with a handgun on Monday after he opened fire at an apartment complex while officers were responding to an unrelated call, police said.

Geraldo Ramirez, 24, fired several rounds in the air to draw the attention of officers who were investigating a car accident. Ramirez then began shooting at them, Deputy Chief Rob Sherwin told a news conference.

5 Apple cleaning up iOS App Store after first major attack

Apple said it is cleaning up its iOS App Store to remove malicious iPhone and iPad programs identified in the first large-scale attack on the popular mobile software outlet.

The hackers embedded the malicious code in apps by convincing developers of legitimate software to use a tainted, counterfeit version of Apple's software for creating iOS and Mac apps, which is known as Xcode, Apple said. REUTERS

6 Plan to admit more refugees faces stiff opposition in US Congress

Plans by President Barack Obama's administration to allow thousands more refugees into the United States faced stiff opposition on Monday in the U.S. Congress, where Republican lawmakers demanded the right to review, and reject, the effort, citing fears of terrorism.

Secretary of State John Kerry on Sunday announced an increase in the number of refugees the country takes in by 15,000 in each of the next two years, bringing the total to 100,000 by 2017.

He did not say how many of the additional refugees would be from Syria, but the remarks may show increasing U.S. willingness to help cope with the mass migration of Syrians, although the offer is modest when compared with the hundreds of thousands that are moving to Europe and, in particular, Germany.

Under current law, Congress does not have to approve the Democratic administration's plans to admit more refugees. But the House of Representatives and Senate, both controlled by Republicans, would have to appropriate money to pay for the additional effort.

Lawmakers worry that Islamic State fighters could pose as refugees in order to sneak into the U.S. or western Europe. REUTERS

Leaders meet. Israel, Russia to coordinate military action on Syria

Russian President Vladimir Putin meets with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu during their talks in Novo-Ogaryovo State Residence in Moscow. / GETTY IMAGES

Israel and Russia agreed on Monday to coordinate military actions over Syria in order to avoid accidentally trading fire, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said during a visit to Moscow.

Recent Russian reinforcements for Syrian President Bashar al-Assad, which regional sources say include warplanes and anti-aircraft systems, worry Israel, whose jets have on occasion bombed the neighboring Arab country to foil suspected hand-overs of advanced arms to Assad's Lebanese guerrilla ally Hezbollah.

Briefing Israeli reporters after he met Russian President Vladimir Putin, Netanyahu said he had come with the goal of "prevent[ing] misunderstandings between IDF [Israel Defense Force] units and Russian forces" in Syria, where Assad is fighting Islamist-dominated insurgents in a civil war.

Netanyahu added that he and Putin "agreed on a mechanism to prevent such misunderstandings." He did not elaborate. There was no immediate comment from the Kremlin.

In earlier remarks as he welcomed Netanyahu to the presidential residence of Novo-Ogaryovo, outside Moscow, Putin said Russian actions in the Middle East would always be "responsible."

Underlining the importance of Netanyahu's one-day visit to Moscow, Israel's premier took along the chief of its armed forces and the general in charge of Israeli military intelligence.

Putin, who shares Western concern about the spread of Islamic State influence, has pledged to continue military support for Assad, assistance that Russia says is in line with international law. Russia has been focusing forces on Syria's coast, where Moscow keeps a big Mediterranean naval base.

Another kid on the way for Brangelina

I was wondering how Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie would personally address the Syrian refugee crisis. The Hollywood power couple is set to adopt a Syrian orphan, according to Radar Online. The child in question is apparently one of three young brothers Jolie met during a tour of a Syrian refugee camp in Turkey. "Angie wanted to adopt all three, but when she got back to the United States, and told Brad about it, he said no," a source says. "Going from six children to nine was just way too much, and Brad was concerned about how it would impact their other kids. But Angie didn't put up a fight. She knew it just wouldn't work."

They apparently compromised on bringing one of the brothers home. "It has been a very long process to adopt the Syrian orphan. The red tape has been almost impossible at times," the source adds. "It could take at least another four to five months before the child is brought to the United States." I'm just going to point out that this brings their number of adopted kids to four versus three biological children, which means someone's going to have to sit out the family pickup soccer games. But they're almost up to a football team!

Katy Perry and John Mayer are definitely a thing again

I know you were wondering, so here's an update on the love life of Katy Perry and erstwhile boyfriend John Mayer. If their behavior and body language at "Girls" star Allison Williams' wedding this weekend is any indication, the two are definitively dating once again. Perry and Mayer arrived at the Wyoming-set ceremony separately, but pretty soon they were inseparable, holding hands and snuggling and sitting all close and junk. "They are definitely back together," a source tells People magazine. In fact, the only time during the festivities they deigned to leave each other's side was when each of them performed a song for the bride and groom. Huh. So that's how you get John Mayer to perform at your wedding. I was wondering.

Orlando Bloom, I worry about you sometimes. You generally seem like a pretty cool guy, as famous people go, then every once in a while you end up in a slap-fight in Ibiza with Justin Bieber. Or this: Bloom is reportedly dating junior varsity Kardashian Kendall Jenner — but, like, secretly, according to the Sun. "The age difference doesn't seem to bother them, although it's far too early for either to tell if it's going to develop into something serious," a source says. What age difference? Oh, just 19 years or so — or exactly as old as Jenner is. It's not as bad as Mel Gibson and his new 25-year-old girlfriend, but still. Come on, man.

Rosie O'Donnell mulling reality TV series

Is our next big reality TV cringe-fest going to follow the burgeoning relationship between Rosie O'Donnell and Tatum O'Neal? Possibly! "A production company has expressed interest in doing a reality show with Tatum and Rosie," a source tells the National Enquirer. "Tatum had done a reality show with her dad, Ryan, and even though it caused headlines for all the wrong reasons, she loved doing it. Rosie, however, is very hesitant to do a reality show because of all the turmoil going on in her life." Sure, but isn't that exactly when you should do something like this, assuming you want big ratings? The real question, of course, is what would they call the show. I'm going to go with "O for O."

Everything wrong with Kanye West

It's amazing you can fit "everything" on this topic into a five-minute video, but that's the bold feat pulled here. This vid takes aim at the ire-inducing egomaniacal rapper, burgeoning fashion mogul and personality — though I take issue with knocking his "George Bush doesn't care about black people" moment.

There's no 'Scream Queens' without the Scream Queen

Interview. Jamie Lee Curtis and Lea Michele are both pretty excited to scare you.

You may know "Glee" star Lea Michele is in Ryan Murphy's new horror/comedy hybrid, "Scream Queens," but chances are it'll take you a minute to recognize her.

The actress wears a neck brace and plays a bit of a nerd — a contrast from the preppy, overachieving good-girl she embodied in the hit high-school musical show.

"I love it," Michele says. "Even the people who know me super well, like a lot of the crew members who came from 'Glee' and are now on 'Scream Queens,' will see me at work and they'll be like, 'I didn't even know I was talking to you.'"

GETTY IMAGES

And that's not the only thing changing: "Ryan won't have me sing," she confirms. "He wants us to be different. I appreciate that."

But even with all the changes, Michele says it's good to be around "family faces, familiar family. There's a trust there. I know I'm in incredible hands."

Not only is Michele reuniting with old pals; she gets to work with the queen of the genre, Jamie Lee Curtis, who plays the dean of the college Michele's character attends.

Catch "Scream Queens" tonight at 8 p.m. on Fox. / GETTY IMAGES

While Michele didn't ask Curtis for advice on horror, she did feel her influence in other ways.

"Jamie Lee is an incredible role model in how to be on set as an actor. She is the greatest sort of centering unit," says Michele. I can't express how grateful we are to have someone that really holds down the fort."

Curtis seems pretty happy to be there, too, saying, "It's the best part I'll ever have in my life."

The actress has seen many changes happen over the years in the horror genre, which "Scream Queens" explores. There's a sharply comedic aspect to the show, similar to the movie "Scream," and Curtis says that's been an important change in horror films.

"They have to evolve. It has to be something that grows and changes, because the trope gets tired," she explains.

While some actors scoff at horror as a genre, Curtis differs. "Without the horror film industry, I wouldn't be here. I wouldn't be enjoying my life. I owe everything I have to ['Halloween' director] John Carpenter, who somehow saw something in me way back in 1978 in a tiny little office on Cahuenga Boulevard for a $300,000 movie that he wrote where he hired me to play the virginal repressed babysitter, and from that moment my life has changed."

Don't scare Jamie

Despite her scary past, Curtis will not be tuning in to the next "Paranormal Activity."

"I am the person who anyone will say to me, 'Oh no no, you can't see that, Jamie.' I scare easily. I scare very easily and there is nothing about being scared that I like," says Curtis.

Just how serious is her no-scares policy?

"My husband and I, in our wedding vows, vowed not to give each other surprise parties," she says.

How medical marijuana can help (if it does)

Here's what we know so far about the healing powers of pot.

ELODIE NOEL
MWN
letters@metro.us

Marijuana is moving from secret stashes in underwear drawers to pharmacy shelves. But what do we know about it?

Humans began cultivating marijuana for medicinal use almost 3,000 years ago. As recently as the middle of the 18th century, it was being used for healing in Calcutta, India. But because it was an illegal drug until recently, research is just getting underway in the West.

So far in the U.S., medical marijuana has been approved for use in 23 states and the District of Columbia, while legalization bills are pending in several others, including Pennsylvania.

"We respond to cannabis because we are built with intrinsic compounds, transmitters and receptors that can be activated by compounds in the cannabis plant," explains Dr. David Casarett, a University of Pennsylvania professor and author of "Stoned: A Doctor's Case for Medical Marijuana." He gives us the facts on where the research stands.

Chronic pain

The treatment of chronic pain is one of the most common uses of medical marijuana. But it's more effective with a certain type of pain. "There are two kinds of chronic pain, one of which is due to conditions like arthritis, where there is swelling, inflammation ... [the other is] neuropathic pains, due to injury to the nerves. It seems marijuana is more efficient at managing neuropathic pains, which is interesting because they can be very hard to treat using opioids," Casarett says.

PTSD

Marijuana could be an effective way to treat post-traumatic stress disorders. "We don't have clinical trial data showing how it works, but I think any time you have lots and lots of people using something for one particular reason, we need to figure out why," the expert says.

Healing bones

In a recent study, Israeli researchers gave cannabidiol (CBD) to rats with bone fractures, and found that the healing process was significantly sped up. When tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), which produces the hallucinations associated with pot, was removed, the effects remained.

Insomnia

"We know from medical trials that marijuana can help you fall asleep if you have other symptoms preventing you from falling asleep, like chronic pains," says Casarett. But more research is needed to prove the effectiveness of medical marijuana on patients who don't have a sleep disorder.

Cancer

On the use of marijuana in treating cancer, Casarett is more skeptical. "We know that the cannabinoids in marijuana work well for nausea, including nausea related to chemotherapy," he highlights, but cautions against believing it has cancer-fighting powers.

"Some people promote its use, not in the management of cancer-related symptoms but as an actual treatment, saying that highly concentrated cannabis oil can be used to put cancer into remission," he recounts.

"While researching for my book, I talked to a woman who had lymphoma. It was treatable and she had about a 90 percent chance of [survival] if she went through chemotherapy, but she decided to put all of her hopes into this cannabis oil. She died a couple of months ago."

WHEN SCHOOLS SAY THEY OFFER STUDENT SUPPORT, WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

It could mean a lot of different things. At Bay State College it means we understand that going back to school is a big decision. And, it means we understand your concerns about succeeding at the college level. That's why, regardless of how you see yourself doing in college, we see an opportunity to help you realize your potential with a community of support.

What else does it mean? It means that admissions counselors can show off our campus, answer your questions and guide you through our selection process—even before you apply. It means helping 95 percent of this year's freshman class receive grants or scholarships that don't have to be repaid. It means personal success coordinators and a closely-knit student body that can help make America's biggest college town feel a little more like home.

In the classroom, it means a wide variety of Associates and Bachelor's degree programs in such in-demand fields as healthcare, business, fashion, criminal justice and more. No matter which program you choose, it means learning in small classes from accessible professors with real-world experience in their field.

To fit your schedule, it means making classes available at night or online.

As you advance toward your degree, it means having a personal career advancement team. It means helping you write cover letters and resumes, creating mock job interviews and using social media to help you get noticed. It means internships at some of Boston's best companies and organizations to build working relationships with people that can help you find a full-time position doing what you love.

In the end, what does it all mean? It means that at Bay State College, we care as much about your comfort as we do your success. It means we're committed to providing you unmatched student support throughout your college journey. It means that going back to school doesn't mean going it alone.

In short, it means Bay State is the right choice for you.

A social media platform that actually makes you smarter?

Education. EdCast wants to be Twitter for knowledge.

Successful businesswoman texts on her phone. / ISTOCK

Several studies have found that social media sites like Facebook and Twitter erode our concentration, analytical reasoning and even social and economic development.

But a new network aims to change that. EdCast — which makes learning social — allows its users to absorb short-form "knowledge bites" written and curated by 100 experts, educators and influencers in fields spanning architecture, technology, robotics and food sciences.

"Think of it as a Twitter for knowledge," says founder and CEO Karl Mehta, himself a White House Presidential Innovation Fellow and TEDx veteran. "Just like you go on Twitter three to five times a day to catch up on the news, you can check EdCast from your smartphone, get these tidbits on the latest research, findings or insights from the top influencers and academics, and learn something new and valuable in minutes."

These bites can include a tutorial by EdCast expert and music mogul Scooter Braun on how to create authentic PR to a video about nuclear security shared by former Secretary of Defense William J. Perry.

But the Stanford StartX company hopes to do far more than teach people stuff. "We want to create a whole new culture of lifelong learning," says Mehta. RAQUEL LANERI

Programs for the New Majority

By James S. Lee,
Undergraduate Dean and Professor of Biology, Cambridge College

Within the 21st century economy, a college degree has become increasingly viewed as an essential instrument for personal and professional advancement, economic stability, and life satisfaction. But while a college degree brings expanded professional opportunities to the individual, so too does the absence of a college degree serve as a predictor of an array of challenges.

According to the Pew Research Center's 2014 analysis, the earnings disparity between adults with bachelor's degrees and those without is at its most pronounced in nearly fifty years. This widening gap exemplifies an ongoing socio-economic trend in the U.S. economy where adults lacking a bachelor's degree have become increasingly marginalized, are far more likely to live in poverty, and, if employed, are more likely to report dissatisfaction with their jobs.

While the Obama Administration's ongoing efforts to increase the number of Americans who enter and complete college directly from high school are critically important, we must not overlook the potential of the millions of current and prospective "nontraditional" students.

Despite the growth in adult (age 25 and older) enrollment, which has begun to outpace traditional-age student enrollment in 2009, the United States, which once had the highest percentage of its population with college degrees, now lags behind Canada in the percentage of its population aged 25 to 64 with an associates degree or higher (43% vs. 38%).

For over 40 years, Cambridge College has specialized in educating adult learners, making it one of the nation's most experienced institutions of higher education focusing on this new majority. Cambridge College's School of Undergraduate Studies opened in 1995, continuing Cambridge's emphasis on access to higher education as a means of creating a more equitable society. The School now offers six bachelor's degrees, multiple concentrations, and a certificate in medical interpreting; all designed to serve you, the new majority.

Never been better

NFL. The Patriots are fresh off a Super Bowl win and are 2-0 in 2015.

Think back to 2007 for a moment. Bill Belichick and the Patriots were fresh off the Spygate controversy and ready to stick it to each and every NFL team. They did, too — all the way up until the Super Bowl. We won't get into what happened there.

The point is that that season the Patriots beat up on the NFL like a Division I college team does to a small college team that paid its way onto their schedule.

Now it's 2015, and fresh off the Deflategate controversy, it looks like Tom Brady may be taking a similar approach.

One week after his four-touchdown game against the Steelers, Brady threw a whopping 59 times for 466 yards and three touchdowns.

As is tradition, Brady had Rex Ryan kicking rocks all the way to the podium. The 61 attempts (he was sacked twice) are second-most in a game during Brady's career. The 38 completed passes were also the second-most in a game, one shy of his personal record. Through two games, Brady has a 119.9 passer rating and has thrown for 754 yards and seven touchdowns without an interception.

The slate

A look at what's on tap for the 2-0 Patriots:

- Sunday, Sept. 27: vs. Jacksonville, 1 p.m.
- Sunday, Oct. 4: Bye
- Sunday, Oct. 11: at Dallas, 4:25 p.m.
- Sunday, Oct. 18: at Indianapolis, 8:30 p.m.

Tom Brady is most certainly a league MVP candidate through the first two games of the 2015 season.
GETTY IMAGES

Despite those numbers, though, it's not Tom Brady versus the NFL (Brady already won that case this summer). The goal is the same as always: Do what's best for the team.

"We go into each game trying to game plan and do what we think is best and then as we get into the game sometimes that can change a little bit based on how the game is going situationally, and also what the matchups are, what's working and what isn't," Bill Belichick said.

Of course, the Patriots will go as far as Brady will take them. It's a quarterback-driven league and that's never been more apparent than it is now. Brady fought for these first four games of the season, and clearly it's been worth it.

"I think when you look around the league, last year there might have been two teams in the league, maybe it was one, but not many, that threw the ball less than they ran it," Belichick said. "So every team is basically over 50 percent passing. Some teams were up in around 70 percent if I remember correctly, like the Bears, teams like that, so that was last year. But it's kind of the general trend in the league."

It can and will change, though. Weather's an obvious factor in the passing game as is opponent strengths. How many times have we seen the Pats run it down the Colts' throats? While Brady would undoubtedly love to throw for 1,000 yards in Indianapolis on Oct. 18, it might not be the game plan.

"We'll just have to be prepared for the game to go however it goes," Belichick said, "and once we get into it, adjust and do what we feel like's best in that particular situation."
